The President's Corner

Roy gave a call the other day and said he was headed to the Gowen Field Museum to talk to the Curator. I've been wanting to form a new relationship with this museum and our club.

Roy drove up in the MUTT. Even though it was February and maybe a little chilly, he said it was important to drive your vehicle, and properly maintain it even in the winter months.

In my time in the Army I recall that vehicle, equipment, and radio maintenance was so important that we devoted every Monday to the task. Boy you did not want to get caught by the Platoon Sergeant or Motor Sergeant being anywhere but the motor pool on that day.

That got me wondering if our members are enjoying a few winter “Mondays”, and getting caught up on vehicle maintenance before we start to get busy this spring.

The Fruitland Show is coming up fast, and the agenda includes trail rides, mud pit, a convoy, and other activities. Needless to say your old iron probably needs some love before Spring. Get out the lube order, the technical manual, even the DA2404 inspection checklist.

This year is going to be great! We hope to do more with the Idaho Military History Museum, and we are already getting calls on static displays and events.

If you need help with yours, bring it over and we'll get right on it! 😊

February Club Minutes

-16 members present.

-Treasurer gave a report on the budget, totals, expenditures, and a report on food spent on BBQ prior to meetings.

-A brief was given by the Fruitland Show Committee. The club voted to approve a $300 advertising budget for the show.

The committee briefed their intention to attend and rent tables at a gun show in April. The Carrol brothers have lead, with Bruce and Ron volunteering to go sit at the table for a while. Can anyone else help?

-Club voted and the social roster (email, phone only) was distributed.

-Club voted to approve the expenditure of $1500 on shirts; Don Wadley is working with a vendor to get bids.

-Club voted to move the meetings to Marie Calenders Restaurant in Boise.

-VP had no remarks.

-5 members expressed their intention to attend the next National Show in Calif.

The Fruitland Show committee

We had a meeting with Alex Gordon on February 26th. Topics of discussion included:

-advertising plan; Carrol brothers have lead. They will also renovate the sign that is parked near the freeway.

-Ron will do a written plan

-Alex will prepare for the show, receive vendors, and provide leadership on some key events.

-James G volunteered to help with grounds preparation

-Carrol brothers volunteered to do the ground survey for vendors and run the gun show.

If you can help out with anything, please let us know. Follow up meetings on the Fruitland Show will be an hour and a half before the club meetings every month at Marie Calenders.

EDITORIAL: “Devotion”

By Ron P

It was the battle of the Chosin Reservoir during the Korean War, and a fierce snowstorm had dumped several feet of snow in the mountains. Ensign Jesse Brown was the Navy's first African American Aviator, flying the F4U Corsair. Jesse was hit by ground fire while support the US Marines, and he was forced to make an emergency landing behind enemy lines. His plane crashed with such force that he was hopelessly pinned inside. Unable to move, and badly injured, all he could do was wave weakly to his wingman, Lt. Thomas Hudner.

A rescue helicopter was called, but Hudner thought it might reach him too late. Jesse's plane was smoking and could burst into flames any moment. He made a decision that might cost him his life, or at the very least a court martial that could cost him his career. He decided to crash land his own Corsair near Jesse's plane, so that he might be able to help his friend.

Hudner landed violently. He made his way to Jesse through waist deep snow, only to find him hopelessly pinned inside, and losing blood. He tried desperately to free his friend, and also piled snow on the plane to keep it from bursting into flame. When the rescue helicopter arrived, the pilot attempted to help but they soon realized it was hopeless.

It was getting late, and the old 2 seat helicopter had no night flying capability. The pilot stressed that they needed to go. As fate would have it, Jesse passed away in that moment with his friend by his side. Instead of receiving a court marshal for wrecking his Corsair, Lt. Thomas Hudner received the Medal of Honor. He subsequently retired from the Navy as Captain after a long and distinguished career. If you want to read more, there is a new book out by Adam Makos titled "Devotion".

Brigadier General (retired) Walt Smith shared some photos of his restorations at his home here in Idaho. We've been trying to recruit him into the club for a while now but he stays busy traveling to Wash D.C. and back a lot. We hope he'll join us this summer for a show or convoy!
